Waterperry Gardens, Oxfordshire, OX33 1LA

Just a stone's throw from Oxford and within easy reach of London nestles Waterperry Gardens. Made famous by Beatrix Havergal who established her School of Horticulture for Ladies here from 1932 to 1971, it's home to 8 acres of beautifully landscaped ornamental gardens, a quality plant centre and garden shop, a gallery and gift shop, a museum and tea shop. Waterperry Gardens is a magical place where beautiful trees, shrubs and flowers, classical borders, modern planting, secret corners and long vistas surround you.

Home to the renowned horticultural college between 1932 and 1971, the emphasis was on food production rather than spectacular ornamental gardens. Over the past twenty years though the gardens have developed and grown, and many new projects have been undertaken and completed. You'll now find a Formal Garden, the Mary Rose Garden, a Waterlily Canal and the Long Colour Border, and they recently planted a small arboretum in the meadow area beyond the canal.
